May cancel trip

Carter banking on energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter hinted today that he might cancel or postpone his scheduled four-continent trip next month if Congress does not finish work on an energy bill by then.

Carter told House Democrats on the energy conference committee that the nation will be "deeply disappointed" if Congress fails to produce a national energy program.

Two congressmen told reporters later that Carter had promised to remain in Washington until sharp differences between Senate and House energy bills have been resolved.

Although Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, first reported Carter might miss a few trips because of his pledge, Reuss and Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-

Ohio, later suggested Carter will be able to meet his overseas travel commitments.

Reuss predicted action on a compromise energy package will be completed by mid-November. Ashley said he expected a bill in about three weeks.

Carter is scheduled to begin his foreign travels on Nov. 22.

Ashley said the President's pledge to remain in the country until action is completed on energy was meant to underscore his determination to achieve legislation he would find acceptable.

Reuss predicted the conferees will come up with a final measure "quite close to the House bill and quite close to the President's original submission."

Ashley reported Carter is "quite flexible" in approaching a compromise. Ashley said Carter was "willing to stay (in Washington) and help us ... as long as it takes."

Reuss and Ashley are members of the House-Senate energy conference committee, one of the largest and most potent such panels in congressional history. It is there, with no fewer than six committee chairmen involved, that the final decisions on the President's program will be made.

Calling the House members to the White House for an early morning pep talk, Carter said that if the program is not enacted, "it will take an almost impossible effort to revive the spirit of hope and confidence and commitment that presently exists."

With Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger attending the meeting, Carter said that international interest in the energy deliberations on Capitol Hill was perhaps even more acute than it is in the United States.

He repeated a statement he made Tuesday that the success or failure of his first year in office and the year's work in Congress would be determined by the shape of the energy program.

Showing none of the anger he displayed at a news conference last week when he criticized oil companies and called for Senate action, Carter said the House had improved his energy plan and predicted that the Senate would act "in a courageous and forceful fashion."

"If we should fail, and I don't think we will, the country will be deeply disappointed," the President told the House members.

The panel's first session Tuesday began with conference committee chairman Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., warning the members that, "We are not dealing in personalities."

But it's likely personalities will play a significant role in the panel's deliberations, for seldom before have so many congressional heavyweights gathered over a conference table to determine the fate of a piece of legislation.

Facing the conferees is, on one side, President Carter's energy plan as passed nearly intact by the House, and on the other, Senate legislation that rejects most of the main proposals

MAPPING OUT STRATEGY—Washington C.H. Police Specialist William Cales (background right) instructs volunteers for a special Halloween season patrol during a meeting at the FOP Lodge, 470 N. Fayette St., Tuesday night. Some 50-60 additional civilian patrol units will fill Washington C.H. streets beginning this week to clamp down on Halloween vandalism. Several members of the Fayette County Night Owls citizen band radio club aided Cales, head of the special program, in planning the operation.

In an attempt to curb costly pranks

Local CB'ers to assist police officers with new Halloween patrol program

By RICK WHAITE
Record-Herald Staff Writer

The Washington C.H. Police Department is cracking down on pranksters this Halloween season with the aid of 50 to 60 additional patrol units, according to a department spokesman.

Police Specialist William Cales, in charge of the special program, said the extra units will be radio-equipped and in direct contact with police headquarters. He said the added patrols, which begin their duties this week, consist of both men and women members of the local "Crime Busters" citizen band radio organization, which boasts over 500 participants.

The first-time program was established to halt the vandalism which costs area residents thousands of dollars in damaged property each year during the Halloween season, Cales said. One of the most costly pranks is spray-painting automobiles, he added, noting that on one day last year, 10 cars were painted. The police specialist estimated the cost of repairing that sort of damage is about $200 to $300 per vehicle.

Another traditional prank that can cause extensive damage is egg-throwing. The acids in the eggs eat away at paint, aluminum siding, vinyl siding and even discolor bricks. If allowed to dry on a car for instance, washing will take off the egg and the paint as well. Sgt. William Robinson said if possible, residents should wash the eggs off their cars and houses before it dries.

But if all goes according to plan, few eggs will ever leave the hands of vandals in Washington C.H. Cales said the city has been divided into 10 zones with at least two or three patrols in each zone until sometime in early November. Some of the zones that have become high crime areas during Halloween will be flooded with five or more extra units, he added.

He said some members of the Night

Owls, a local citizen band radio club, assisted in planning the operation.

However, pranksters won't be able to spot one of the patrols simply by a CB antenna. Cales said there would not be any verbal or physical contact between the violators and the special patrols. The units' member or members will directly contact police headquarters which will dispatch police officers to the scene.

Members of the Crime Busters program, or anyone willing to become a member, who have not yet volunteered for the special Halloween patrols may do so by contacting Specialist Cales through the police department.

Through progressive school programs

County confronting age-old problem

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

In the not too distant past, the mentally retarded were locked in insane asylums or upstairs bedrooms because it was thought to be the best way to treat the problem.

"The problem is more open now," Carl Whitaker, administrator of the Fayette County Progressive School, says. "We're more vocal in expressing the need to confront the problem."

The founding of the county progressive school 10 years ago was one way to confront the problem.

So, instead of placing the mentally retarded in mental institutions are locking them upstairs to be whispered about, parents can enroll their handicapped children in classes conducted at the progressive school.

Presently, there are 61 students in classes at the school which is now located in the former Sunnyside Elementary School building on S. Fayette Street and is seeking voter approval of two tax levies in November to keep the instruction program running smoothly.

Two programs are operating out of the old elementary school building, the early childhood program and the school age program.

The childhood or pre-school program is for mentally retarded or other developmentally disabled children six years of age or less.

The intent of the program is to raise the level of physical, mental and social functioning of a pre-school child. This program has been successful in sending some of the pre-schoolers into the public school system.

Whitaker reported that three or four of the students last year are now taking classes in the public schools.

The students are not the only ones who benefit from the progressive school's early childhood program. The parents and the rest of child's family are eligible for service.

The family is assisted in acquiring and maintaining skills that will enable them to cope with the demands of the handicapped child.

The school age program follows the childhood program in that it helps provide a structured comprehensive education and habilitation program.

However, the intent of the school age program, which is for youths 7 to 18 years of age, is not only to raise the level of mental social, and physical functioning, but to aid in vocational training and emotional coping.

The school age children undergo educational training similar to that received by public school students.

Physical development is also important in the progressive school's programs.

Two or three times a week, a physical development specialist visits the school to instruct the students in exercise and physical games. He is Steve Davis, who spends the remainder of his time with a similar school in Clinton County.

Competitive track meets and games such as volleyball are also considered important in coordinating the physical development program.

The progressive school students participated in a track meet last spring with schools from Clinton and Highland counties and the local students also played in a volleyball tournament last winter at Orient State Institute.

Field trips are also a part of the progressive school's curriculum.

This past year, the students attended a performance of the Shrine Circus, traveled to Kings Island amusement park, toured the Columbus Zoo, attended Handicapped Children's Day at the Ohio State Fair, and went on picnics and a camping trip.

The camping trip was at Deer Creek State Park. Sixteen students slept in tents and helped cook their own meals. Nature hikes and games were also conducted for the students.

"It was a pleasant experience," Whitaker said of the overnight camping trip. "This is important. They learn by experiencing things first hand."

As annual Pumpkin Show opens

Circleville city workers strike

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Circleville municipal workers were scheduled to go on strike over a wage dispute today, the opening day of the celebrated Pumpkin Show.

About 400,000 visitors are expected for the Pumpkin Show which extends through the weekend, but the city will have to do without a full staff of firemen and water, sewage and maintenance workers.

The Pickaway County community has about 80 city workers, including management personnel. About 40 who are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees voted Tuesday night to begin their work stoppage with today's 7 a.m. shift.

Police protection will not be affected and area volunteer fire departments were to be on call.

"We will do our best to continue services at a normal level," said Mayor Frank Barnhill.

He said there are enough management personnel to maintain city services.

The AFSCME-represented workers are bargaining for their first contract with the city. The lowest paid workers earn $3.17 an hour. The union is demanding a 50-cent hourly increase and the city has offered 12 cents.

Village gets $1.5 million

New Holland sewer project grant OKd

NEW HOLLAND—A request for a $1.5 million grant to partially fund the long-awaited New Holland sewer improvement project has been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The New Holland Village Council is expected to accept the grant at its next regularly scheduled meeting on Nov. 7, according to council president Josef E. Louis.

Louis, who is serving as acting mayor of the village while Mayor Ed Summers is on a four-month tour of duty with the Ohio National Guard, said the federal grant would cover 75 per cent of the sewer improvement costs.

The actual grant total has been set at $1,535,100.

The remaining cost of the over $2 million project would be paid by the village. If construction costs estimates are correct, the village would pay $511,700 or 25 per cent of the cost.

Louis said the village will finance its share of the cost through a long-term Farmer's Home Administration loan. The loan would be for 40 years at 5½ per cent interest.

After the EPA grant is accepted by the village council, the village can begin obtaining easements for the installation of sewer lines, which by survey will go through private property.

Bids for the construction phase of the project will be advertised soon, according to Louis.

Seico, Inc., an Indiana engineering firm, has been working on the sewer improvement project since 1971.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Friday.

Sunday beer sale okayed in state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes allowed to become law without his signature today a bill to permit sale of high-powered beer and wine on Sundays, subject to approval by voters at local option elections.

Rhodes did not comment on the legislation which was sponsored by Rep. Patrick A. Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland.

The bill, which is effective Jan. 18, is specifically designed for carryouts and other sellers of take-home packages. Under present law, only the sale of beer with 3.2 per cent alcohol content may be sold on Sunday.

Thank You ...

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the beautiful floral arrangements, food and kindnesses shown me during the loss of my husband, Otho L. Fent.

A special thanks to Dr. Anderson and The Burcham Funeral Home in Fairborn, Ohio.

Autopsy shows bullet in back of neck

Terrorist's suicide disputed

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A lawyer for Andreas Baader said today the convicted terrorist died in his cell of a bullet wound in the back of the neck and expressed doubt he committed suicide.

Lawyer Heinz Funke told a news conference he saw the fatal wound at an autopsy in Tuebingen, where Baader's body was taken Tuesday from his cell in Stuttgart's Stammheim Prison.

He did not say flatly he thought someone else had killed Baader, Baader's mistress Gudrun Ensslin and a third urban guerrilla who the government says committed suicide early Tuesday in their cells at the maximum-security prison.

Otto Schily, representing Miss Ensslin's parents, confirmed the account by state Justice Minister Traugott Bender that Miss Ensslin died of strangulation by an electrical cord.

Bender said Miss Ensslin hanged herself in her cell. Schily, who saw her corpse laying on a bed, said the cord had been "wrapped several times" around her neck. But he did not speculate on whether she killed herself.

The government and the chairmen of the major political parties joined in a statement saying it was clear German terrorists are dedicated "to further sharpening of their fanatical and murderous struggle."

The violent backlash to the deaths erupted almost immediately.

Bombs wrecked three German automobile showrooms in the Italian cities of Turin and Leghorn early today. A caller to an Italian news agency said the "Revolutionary Armed Groups" were responsible for the Turin attacks. The caller ended the message: "Honor to the comrades fallen in Germany."

There were no injuries in the attacks. Leftists marched in Rome, Milan, Genoa, Athens and London.

In London, marchers outside the West German Embassy chanted "Murder! Murder!" In Rome, riot police and armored cars kept the marchers away from the West German Embassy.

Seventeen lawyers who have represented terrorist suspects in West Germany issued a statement suggesting that the government killed the three prisoners to appease public demands for revenge in the wake of recent terrorist actions.

The Baden-Wuerttemberg government reported Tuesday that Baader, the 34-year-old co-founder of West Germany's most active terrorist organization, and Jan-Carl Raspe, 33, shot themselves in the head in their cells in a maximum-security prison in Stuttgart early Tuesday, and Gudrun Ensslin, 37, Baader's mistress, hanged herself in her cell.

They said another terrorist, Irmgard Moeller, 30, stabbed herself in the chest with a bread knife but was recovering in a hospital.

Baader, Raspe and Miss Ensslin were the core of the Red Army Faction, an ultraleftist group known popularly as the Baader-Meinhof gang. Its co-leader, Ulrike Meinhof, was found hanged in her cell in May, 1976, and her death also touched off bombings and other violent protests and allegations of murder.

The four Stuttgart prisoners were among 11 German terrorists whose freedom had been demanded by terrorists who hijacked a Lufthansa jetliner last Thursday. The deaths came only hours after West German commandos stormed the hijacked plane in Somalia, killing three of the four hijackers and rescuing the hostages.

Baader, Raspe and Miss Ensslin were serving life terms for a series of bombings in 1972 that killed four U.S. servicemen. Miss Moeller was serving time for membership in the Baader-Meinhof gang and was awaiting trial on charges of taking part in terrorist attacks.

Stock market little changed

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market was little changed today, continuing Tuesday's sluggish pattern.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped .51 to 820.00 in the first half hour.

Gainers and losers were evenly balanced in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said many traders were waiting uneasily for the Federal Reserve's weekly report Thursday afternoon on the money supply.

They noted fears of another sharp increase in the basic measure of the money supply that might lead to further credit-tightening by the central bank.

Dow Chemical slipped 1/4 to 28 1/4 in active trading. The company reported lower third quarter earnings.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average edged up .17 to 820.51.

Advances noted on declines by about an 8-7 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 20.13 million shares against 17.34 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was unchanged at 51.19.

Band festival set for Miami Trace

Plans for a second annual marching band festival and contest to be held at Miami Trace High School Oct. 29 have been finalized.

Bands will begin competition at 4 p.m. and compete in three classes, A, AA, and AAA. Judges for the event will be college band directors.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning bands.

Tickets for the competition can be obtained from any Miami Trace or Washington Senior high school band members. Advance tickets are $1. Tickets will also be sold at the door for $1.50.

Andy Anderson is serving as the general chairman for the festival, which is being sponsored by the Miami Trace High School Band Boosters Club.

Lack of quorum postpones meet

Tuesday night's regularly scheduled Fayette County Board of Education meeting was postponed, according to Superintendent Guy Foster.

Foster reported that three of the five board members were unable to attend the meeting. Without a majority of the members present no official action could be taken on board matters.

The board meeting has been tentatively rescheduled for Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the district administrative offices at 414 E. Court St.

The conference committee of 25 House members and 18 senators — the Senate side will be expanded later when conferees get to the tax aspects of the plan — must find a compromise version acceptable to both chambers.

Here are brief sketches of the major players who will decide over the next several weeks what steps the nation must take to conserve energy, who will make the needed sacrifices — and who will pay the bill:

—Staggers, 70, a member of Congress since 1948, is chairman of the House Commerce Committee which handled most of the nontax portions of the President's energy plan. He was unanimously picked to chair the conference committee. He can be expected to back the President's plan.

Nuclear waste 'bottle'

There is reason to hope that at some time - 50 years or a century hence, perhaps more - society will have perfected absolutely safe methods of storing radioactive nuclear wastes. Meanwhile, lacking such methods, the present generation bears a stern responsibility.

This responsibility arises from the persistence of harmful radiation in the waste products of military and civilian nuclear activities. The hazard does not continue for mere years or even decades, but for vastly greater periods.

The waste materials fall into different categories. Cesium-137 and Strontium-90 may pose a danger for 1,000 years. Elements heavier than uranium - plutonium, for instance - may remain hazardous for periods much longer than the entire span of recorded history thus far: 20,000 years or more.

There are two basic problems. One is to find geologically stable places where large quantities of radioactive waste can be stored out of harm's way. The other is to devise containers highly resistant to leakage - not only physical leakage in the usual sense, but the escape of radioactivity.

All this is background for word from Washington that three Catholic University scientists have developed a new method of storing nuclear wastes. They have improved on the basic idea of mixing radioactive materials in glass, a substance which resists deterioration for a long time.

The trouble is that "a long time" is relative, and according to the Catholic University team glasses hitherto developed could not be depended on to hold in radioactive gases indefinitely. Their process would surround the waste-containing glass with a layer of very hard "pure" glass strong enough to contain the wastes and the radioactive gases released.

Though the method has yet to be adapted to large-scale use, it sounds promising. There is no way of telling just how long such glass containers would remain inviolate. The chances seem good, however, that by the time they start to break down a future generation will have discovered better means of disposal.

"THEY HAVE DISCOVERED A LOOPHOLE IN THE PROPOSED BUSINESSMEN'S TWO-MARTINI LUNCH TAX."

Capitol ideas

Strict ethics measure okayed by House panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a coincidence surely not intended, the day the House voted not to consider a reform commission's recommendations for improving its practices, its Judiciary Committee approved a measure to set higher ethical requirements — in the executive branch.

The bill would require officials to disclose their financial affairs more fully and to refrain from using their government contacts for private interest after leaving office.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., the chairman, said that, "with growing public skepticism of our government officials, it is necessary that we move very rapidly to enact safeguards against conflicts of interest by officials in the federal executive branch."

Rodino, incidentally, voted to consider the proposed House standards and procedures.

The House clerk's report, listing vouchers members put in for expenses, provided some ammunition for those who claimed earlier House reforms weren't working.

The great majority of entries, however, seemed to be well within guidelines for official expenditures and a few were downright parsimonious.

For example, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., had one for $1.30 spent delivering a report — by subway.

When Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., asked the House to agree to a conference on a bill to admit bobsleds and luges duty-free, members sat up and listened.

It wasn't that they were that keenly interested in winter sports, but that the Senate in its free-wheeling style had tacked 169 pages of energy legislation onto the minor bill.

Then again, Staggers was having trouble pronouncing luges. He gave it several variations, while the House chuckled, and the clerk, reading the measure, had still another twist.

The dictionary says a luge is a small sled of Swiss origin and that it rhymes with rouge.

An investigator for a Senate subcommittee looking into a purported union-insurance scandal was describing a trip to Miami to interview a man who allegedly threatened the life of a major figure in the case.

The investigator testified that he was accompanied by three members of the local sheriff's force.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Regrets passing up boy who was shorter

DEAR ABBY: With the school social season just commencing, you'd be doing a real service to urge girls not to pass up a boy just because he's short.

During my college years, a wonderful fellow tried many times to date me. He was bright, popular, kind and had a great sense of humor, but he had one fault. He was shorter than I was. So I never dated him.

Finally I married a tall, handsome college athlete. He's conceited, lazy and dumb. We live from hand to mouth.

The short fellow I wouldn't even date is now a very successful professional man. He married a beautiful girl who adores him. She's half-a-head taller than he is, but nobody seems to notice. She has a beautiful home, status and security. Everytime I see her, I think, "there but for the cockeyed values of my youth go I."

Print this, Abby. Many girls can learn from it.

MISS THE BOAT

DEAR MISSED: And speaking of boats that have been missed, let's look at the guys who've left themselves on the dock.

I refer to fellows who wouldn't date a girl because she was a little too short, or tall, or skinny, or plump. She may have been intelligent, kind, lots of fun and eager to please, but because she had less-than-lovely limbs or an unfortunate complexion, she was bypassed.

So now that the school season is commencing, boys, look around. Give the plain girls a chance. You may do yourself a favor that will last about 50 years.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 13-year-old boy who impregnated a 15-year-old girl seemed to contain overtones of "macho bragging." He said, "The parents made a terrible fuss." What did he expect a new bicycle?

Abby, I wish you had said that although puberty may occur quite early in some boys, it is not the only sign of manhood. A real man of any age handles his sexuality in a responsible manner.

N.Y. READER

DEAR READER: Well said. And so does a real woman.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was recently honored at a banquet by the company he works for.

At the end of the program, he was called upon to say a few words. When he reached the microphone, everyone stood up and applauded.

As his wife, I felt it would be out of place for me to stand up and applaud my husband, but my heart was applauding.

Did I do the right thing by remaining seated?

SECOND THOUGHT

DEAR SECOND: I think you should have applauded with your HANDS as well as with your heart.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif., 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1977. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1781, the Revolutionary War neared its end as the British surrendered at Yorktown, Va.

On this date: In 1735, the second American president, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1912, Bulgarians began the siege of the Turkish city of Adrianople in the Balkan wars.

In 1942, in World War II, American planes bombed Japanese troops and supply concentrations on Guadalcanal.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed to a withdrawal of British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

In 1960, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and 52 other blacks were arrested during a sitdown demonstration in a department store in Atlanta.

Ten years ago: Students and police had a bloody battle on the campus of New York's Brooklyn college as students demonstrated against the appearance of two Navy recruiters.

Five years ago: German novelist Heinrich Boll was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

One year ago: A triple veto in the United Nations Security Council by Britain, France and the United States blocked a resolution that would have embargoed arms shipments to South Africa.

Today's birthday: Columnist Jack Anderson is 55 years old.

Thought for today: If our civilization should perish, it will come about in part because it was not good enough to survive — writer Lewis Mumford.

The first automobile filling station dealing exclusively in the sale of gasoline and petroleum products was established in Columbus, Ohio, by Standard Oil of Ohio in 1917. Columbus also was the site of the first fulltime, fully equipped auto repair garage, initiated by bicycle repairman Frank Avery in 1899.—AP

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When last seen, Pat McCormick sat gloomily in a Hollywood bistro. He was bemoaning a great fiscal loss incurred by his investment in a diaper service in Sun City.
He recently was asked how he plans to recoup his loss.
"Well," he said, "I bought into a cyclamate factory ..."
But the six-foot-six, 250-pound Irishman needn't depend on that for a living. He's a top comedy writer here, with 5½ years on "Tonight," plus credit on a string of comedy specials and movies.
In the last three years, he's also acted in four movies — "The Shaggy D.A.," Robert Altman's "Buffalo Bill and the Indians," Burt Reynolds' "Smoky and the Bandit" and Altman's new "A Wedding."
It now turns out that this mustachioed citizen, once honored as "The World's Tallest Leprechaun," has yet another career going — in radio comedy, a species of entertainment heretofore believed extinct.
He and a partner, Al Barzman, produce and star in a show called "Studio B." It's a series of weird 90-second interviews they've syndicated to radio stations nationally since June 1976.
McCormick, who says 190 stations air the chats, always is the interviewee.

It's doubtful any of them ever will make Barbara Walters' list of people in need of interviewing.
For example, one is a humpdrier in a camel wash. Another is the tiniest man in the world. Another is a worthy Pat calls "the guy who predicts the past."
McCormick, born in Lakewood, Ohio and educated at Harvard, says he and Barzman also will have a sequel soon, "Studio B-2." It features other players in addition to the original cast of two.
It's strange McCormick is loose in radio humor, as he's been a full-time TV writer ever since a pal, comedian Jonathan Winters, wangled him to work on "Tonight" when Jack Parr was the main event.
Asked for an explanation, he said his for-ears career began six years ago when he and Barzman, who makes commercials, teamed up to do off-the-wall comedy ads touting various products. All were for radio.
"We'd go in the back studio and wing 'em," he said, meaning they made it up sans script. "Then it occurred to us, maybe we could do that with a syndicated radio show, just go in and wing it."
A non-radio matter: What will McCormick do if that cyclamate factory he invested in fails? He pondered the prospect a minute.
"Well," he confidently declared, "I'll probably open a suit shop for tall and portly men in Tokyo ..."

Cambodians given asylum in Vietnam

EDITOR'S NOTE — Horst Faas, the Associated Press photographer and writer who won a Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of the Vietnam War, recently returned to the country with a German tourist group. An AP News Special By HORST FAAS
Associated Press Writer
HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Some 60,000 Cambodians have been granted asylum in Vietnam in the past year and are living in desperate conditions on the outskirts of Saigon and in the provinces west of the former South Vietnamese capital, diplomatic sources in Hanoi say.
At least 16,000 of these refugees are trying to leave Vietnam and have asked the Hanoi office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees for help.
Most of the refugees are reported to have been small traders, businessmen, manufacturers or employees in shops, business houses and manufacturing concerns.
Most are said to be from towns from which the entire population was moved forcibly to the countryside after the Communist takeover in 1975.
"The Vietnamese government has been looking after the Cambodian refugees despite its own food shortages and economic difficulties," one diplomat said. "The Cambodians are receiving rice rations that just keep them alive and are under the ration of 14 kilos (30.8 pounds) every Vietnamese gets per month."
The source also said the Cambodians are allowed to work as small businessmen and vendors.
"That means they can peddle their last belongings to stay alive," he said.
A diplomat from a nonaligned country who is stationed in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, reported during a visit to Hanoi that he and his colleagues know almost nothing about what is going on in the country.
"We have to live in a hotel in downtown Phnom Penh which we can never leave," he said. "The food is delivered to us from the outside. We cannot even go out on the pavement outside the hotel."
Western observers in Hanoi say they have practically no information about the situation along the Cambodian-Vietnamese frontier. Last August, some Vietnamese newspapers reported clashes along the border. But in a visit with a German tourist group to a province about 20 miles from the Cambodian frontier, this reporter could see no sign of military activity or preparedness.
Cambodia and Vietnam have full diplomatic relations. But diplomats in Vietnam say they believe the Vietnamese government has not returned any refugees to Cambodia.

"In this respect the Vietnamese have acted with more respect for basic human rights than some of the other Southeast Asian nations," one Western diplomat said.
He was referring to governments that have refused to admit refugees from the Indochinese countries.
Of the 16,000 Cambodian refugees who have asked the U.N. commissioner for help, 3,000 have received entry visas for France. Seventy have received West German visas, and U.N. officials believe West Germany may take 150 more. Belgium also will take 150.

Carter to attend breakfast to hear of farmers' problems

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Jimmy Carter will hear first-hand about farmers' headaches in this drought-choked federal disaster area when Woodrow Wilson Diehl gathers "some of the boys" for breakfast Saturday in the Diehl farmhouse.
"We have so many things to talk about," said Diehl, 64. "I'd like to talk about the cattle situation, the wheat situation, the drought, corn prices, energy. I hope I'm equal to the task."
Carter will be making his first Iowa Democratic party appearance since taking office when he kicks off a four-state swing with a fund-raising dinner in the state capital.
"Woody" Diehl and his 59-year-old wife, Mary, say they were advised Sunday that the President would be a guest Friday evening on their 1,600-acre farm, which lies on a dirt road about 12 miles south of Des Moines in drought-stricken Warren County.
Picture windows in the spacious farmhouse look out on a small pond and the rest of the "Marywood Farm."

Garden Club prepares for winter

The Washington Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Olive Brookover for a covered dish luncheon.

Mrs. Donald Meredith, the newly elected president, conducted the meeting with 11 members present. Officers reports were given and the secretary reported the "Ranger Rick Magazine," will be renewed and presented to the children's ward of Fayette County Memorial Hospital another year.

Reservations for the regional meeting, November 10, are to be made by October 30. The meeting will be held at Faith Community Unity Methodist Church, 100 Country Club Drive, Xenia, Ohio.

Garden Clubs president's council was reported on by the president. Mrs. Jess Schlichter will be the new president for the council.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent discussing yard and garden care for the coming winter. It is now time for gardens to be put to bed. Dahlias, cannas, Gladiolus, Tuberroses, Peruvian Daffodils and other bulbs and tubers should be dug, dried and stored in a cool, not too dry, dark place. It is also a good time to feed trees and shrubs and to spray wide leaf grass that is a pest to lawns. It was recommended that Amitol in a squeeze bottle and sprayed directly on this grass is a good product.

Members were reminded to begin putting bird feed in the feeders during the winter days.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Euhla Wade. Roll call will be answered by naming a tree or shrub that may be used for or in a Thanksgiving arrangement.

A specimen of the tree or shrub should be brought. Mrs. Robert Wilson will demonstrate how to make wreath swags on garlands.

Miss Thomas bethrothed

PATTI D. THOMAS

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Thomas of Bloomingburg wish to announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Patti Denise Thomas, to James W. Weidman of Wind Gap, Pa.

The couple will be united in marriage on November 4 at 6:30 p.m. at the Christ Victory Church in Bloomingburg. The open church custom will be observed. A reception immediately following the ceremony will be held in the Town Hall in Bloomingburg.

Weiner roast held by Grades to Grads

The Grades to Grads CCL met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cline for a family night weiner roast.

During a short business meeting, Mrs. Rayburn Shinkle was approved as a new member. It was announced that the next meeting will be held at a health spa.

Those present were Mrs. Charles Roush, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Shinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ritenour and son Mark, Mr. and Mrs. David Owens and sons Mike and Jeff, Mrs. Lee Marshall, Mrs. Johnnie Bobbitt and children Allen and Donna, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warnock, the hosts and their children Charles and Stephen.

Former local resident slated for beauty seminar key role

Kenneth E. Anders, a native of Washington C.H. and owner of four area Kenneth's Designgroup beauty salons, including two in Washington C.H., will be presented in a key role at the "Breakthru" program in Columbus, Ohio on Monday, Nov. 7.

The "Breakthru" program is part of the educational and professional seminar department of the Helene Curtis Co., national manufacturer of professional and retail beauty products. The Columbus show is sponsored by Lancaster Beauty Supply, Lancaster, and will star Anders, who is a part of Designgroup Ohio.

Anders has traveled throughout the nation for over two years, presenting creative hair designs and methods of personal and professional motivation to professional hairdressers. He has appeared in Dayton, Atlanta, Portland, San Diego, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Honolulu, New York, Lansing, and Chicago.

Anders and Designgroup Ohio, including Michael Schuh and Violet Carter, will present a seminar to professionals on the latest trends and techniques in the beauty industry, including permanent waving, coloring, and a variety of the latest haircut designs. Anders will present motivational material for the some 300 stylists in attendance that day.

Anders is now completing his first publication for the beauty industry, entitled "Solid Gold Success", and uses material from his book in his motivational program.

Area stylists interested in attending the "Breakthru" show should contact Lancaster Beauty Supply for tickets.

APPOINTMENT MADE

Kenneth E. Anders, owner of Kenneth's Designgroup salons in Washington C.H., Mount Sterling, and Columbus, has announced the appointment of Sue Mossbarger, a native of Bloomingburg, to the professional staff of hair designers at his Columbus salon, 5151 Reed Road.

Ms. Mossbarger, a graduate of Miami Trace High School, is also a graduate of Nationwide Beauty Academy, Columbus. She has been a practicing cosmetologist for five years, and has recently completed an intensive training program with the firm. She is qualified as a counselor in all phases of beauty and hair care, and will specialize in custom-design cutting and styling in her new position, as well as in all phases of permanent waving, coloring and other areas of beauty.

ATTEND WORKSHOP

Eight local associates of the E.J. Plott real estate agency in Washington C.H. recently attended a three-day workshop and seminar at Atwood Lake Lodge, near Delroy, Ohio, held by broker E.J. Plott.

The associates were presented material from Bob Richards and Norman Vincent Peale, along with an eight-hour program by Ed Foreman, president of Executive Development Systems, of Dallas, Tex.

Attending from the Washington C.H. office were Gloria Rich, Jo Everhart, Mary Nugent, Robert and Sharon Crabtree, Delsa Allen, Glen Riley and Gary Lyons.

PRIZE WINNERS

Fed departments balk at Carter's energy directive

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — President Carter has called upon the nation to save energy, but he can't get his own bureaucrats to agree on ways and means.

He has asked his fellow Americans to drive smaller cars, lower their thermostats and insulate their homes to reduce oil consumption. The populace, of course, is expected to sacrifice with a smile. But a conservation plan for the federal bureaucracy has run into petulant resistance.

The president issued an executive order last July that the government must reduce fuel consumption by 20 per cent in federal automobiles and buildings (45 per cent in new buildings). But so far, all he has gotten from the bureaucrats is a lot of groaning and griping.

Representatives from the various government agencies met behind closed doors last month to discuss how to implement the president's order. The confidential minutes show that the bureaucrats spent the whole time bellyaching.

The Federal Energy Administration, which is now being absorbed into the new Energy Department, was supposed to draft the energy guidelines. But the other agencies couldn't agree on conservation measures and refused to accept the guidelines.

The Defense Department consumes the most energy and, therefore, is the most in need of a conservation program. But the Pentagon representative, Col. J.F. Miley, began whining "before the discussion began," the minutes relate.

"He saw no reason to discuss the guidelines in detail," the minutes quoted him as saying, "as they are unacceptable." He grumped that the "guidelines tell agencies how (to save energy), and Defense does not think FEA, the early arrival, is competent to do this."

Similar disgruntled comments were registered by representatives from the Veterans Administration and National Aeronautics and Space Administration, according to the minutes. There was an almighty uproar, for example, over FEA's plan to place special meters in each federal building to audit the energy use.

Growled the Transportation Department representative: "FEA is treating us like children while, in fact, we are professional engineers." He added that the FEA "is not competent to tell Transportation how to (conserve energy)."

But it was the Pentagon's Miley who continued to complain the loudest. The FEA had "written the plans backwards," he snorted, "as it excludes 98 per cent of the facilities."

A General Services Administration official chimed in: "The guidelines are no guides at all but regulations."

The meeting continued that way, according to the confidential minutes, with disagreement upon disagreement. Finally, Col. Miley served notice on behalf of the Pentagon: "We will comply with the Executive Order but not the guidelines as drafted. (We) do not want to be forced to stonewall but will if necessary."

Curious Contract: Huge amounts of money flow into the coffers of those corporations that have mastered the art of winning a federal contract. The key to success often lies in knowing the bureaucrats who award the contracts.

The Energy Research and Development Administration, for example, recently asked for bids on a $500,000 contract to build 10 electric cars and vans. The proposal specified that only companies which have already built such vehicles could qualify. Despite the restrictions, South Coast Technology and EVA-Chloride won contracts although neither had ever produced an electric vehicle.

There are other disturbing questions in the case. South Coast Technology wasn't even formally organized until July 6, 1977, one day after the initial closing date for contract bids. Another firm, EVA-Chloride, was incorporated in April.

Although the contract called for five separate companies to manufacture the cars, the winners included both EVA Corp. and EVA-Chloride, which operate as a joint venture from the same Cleveland address. EVA-Chloride, incidentally, is affiliated with a British manufacturing concern, even though the contract asked that small U.S. firms get the business.

ERDA also allowed four companies to make late bids and wound up selecting two of them, the same EVA-Chloride and Battronic Truck Corp.

Industry sources agreed that the five fortunate companies were chosen because of their "connections" with ERDA. "Some people have better acquaintances than others," one source told us.

An ERDA spokesman insisted our reporter Valerie Strauss, however, that "the contracting procedure was done as perfectly as could be done." But he declined to explain the inconsistencies.

Meanwhile, at least one firm that lost out is expected to sue ERDA. Four losing firms have already formally protested to the General Accounting Office.

School bill tops agenda

State senators convene for abbreviated session

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators convene today to begin an abbreviated legislative session with all the major issues awaiting their action. The House convenes Thursday.

Foremost among matters to be decided is a stopgap bill to keep schools in Cleveland, and possibly other districts, from having to close because of so-called "cash flow" problems.

The Senate also plans to act on a House-approved capital improvements bill, which represents about $524 million worth of state construction projects in the next two years.

Another House measure which makes changes in Ohio's charitable bingo law could be enacted this week. It emerged in revised form late Tuesday from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Leaders of the Democratic legislature expressed disappointment Tuesday that two other priority measures — one in a joint conference committee and the other a House measure stalled in a Senate committee — cannot be enacted this week.

No meetings are scheduled as of now for the six-member conference committee trying to resolve Senate-House differences on a long-debated bill establishing collective bargaining rights for public employees.

Although Democrats billed it as a top priority early this year, it suffered a setback during a public outcry over a Dayton firemen's strike this summer, and is now simmering on a back burner.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said Tuesday there was no rush to get it passed, especially since most of the workings of the legislation would not begin until 1979 anyway. He said he was pleased that the House version of the measure now has won important endorsements from mayors and other local government officials.

Riffe said he was "disappointed" that the Senate Energy and Public Utilities Committee has bogged down on a major House bill creating a new cabinet level department of energy. But Sen. Neal F. Zimmers Jr., D-5 Dayton, claims the legislation needs further study.

Sen. M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland, said he would introduce in the Senate today an emergency bill that would enable the Cleveland school district, at least, to borrow against 1978 revenues to avoid having to shut down until the first of next year.

Under the proposal, fashioned last week by an informal panel of senators and House members, districts levying 35 mills or more in local property taxes could borrow, in just this one instance, if they present a payback plan and get it approved by the state Education Department. Short terms notes authorized by the bill would have to be paid off by June 30, 1978.

Ohio's school districts currently may borrow only to the extent that they can repay their loans by the end of each current calendar year. Based on recent audits, Jackson and others noted Cleveland would end the calendar year with an illegal $19 million deficit. Thus, if the legislation isn't approved, the 110,000-pupil district will have to close until Jan. 1, almost immediately.

More than 40 other school districts have requested audits on the suspicion they may be in the same financial situation as the state's largest city. However, most have local tax levies pending which could resolve any such problems.

Under the emergency legislation, the 35-mill tax effort requirement would affect only Cleveland. It is the only district levying that much millage and currently in trouble.

However, Riffe hinted Tuesday, as Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, had earlier, that the millage requirement may be stripped from the bill. This would make borrowing possible for any of Ohio's more than 600 districts, if they could submit a satisfactory payback plan.

Senate Finance Chairman Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, said he expected prompt Senate approval of the capital improvements bill. Biggest Senate changes in the bill deleted a requirement for 10 per cent of Ohio's construction contracts to be set aside for minority contractors.

If approved by the Senate, that measure would return to the House on Thursday for consideration of Senate amendments.

Woman describes hijacking rescue

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The seven-minute commando strike that freed the 86 hostages aboard the hijacked West German airliner was over before she knew what was happening, one of the women aboard the plane reported on her return home.

"I was sitting at the emergency exit. I didn't hear a thing, not even a scratching or anything," said the rescued hostage, who asked not to be identified. "Then somebody fell on top of us. All I heard was 'Heads down.' Somebody was covering us with his body and all we heard was 'Heads down, don't be scared'."

Two dozen German commandos had blasted through the emergency doors on the hijacked Lufthansa Boeing 737 at Somalia's Mogadishu airport early Tuesday.

The U.S. ambassador to the East African country, John L. Loughran, gave this account of the operation: Masked by the darkness, commandos crept within 200 yards of the nose of the plane and set off several "flash" grenades that emit a blinding light and loud noise to draw the hijackers to the front of the plane, away from the emergency exits.

As the terrorists rushed for the cockpit, other commandos burst into the plane through rear and side emergency exits.

Rushing forward, the troops shot the terrorists, killing two instantly and wounding the other two, one fatally.

Another woman said she heard explosions and almost immediately one of the commandos called, "Come out, come out."

"But nobody dared to move," she said.

The hostages, many of them covering on the floor, finally arose and began sliding down the emergency exits.

A medical team, including Italian teachers from the Mogadishu medical school, examined each hostage at a field hospital set up in the terminal building.

"There was a spirit of total elation at the airport," Loughran said. "The spirit on the Somali side was to do everything possible to make the passengers happy."

The hijackers, described by passengers as Middle Eastern types at least one of whom was a woman, had threatened to blow up the plane unless 13 terrorists held in West Germany and Turkey were set free and Bonn paid $15 million ransom.

After the commando raid was announced in West Germany, authorities said, three of the terrorists on the list — Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe — committed suicide in their cells, and a fourth, Irmgard Moeller, stabbed herself. Officials said Miss Moeller would recover.

News of the prison deaths touched off violent protests in several European cities, and radical German lawyers suggested that the government had murdered the prisoners. Bombs wrecked German automobile showrooms in two northern Italian cities.

West German officials braced for a new upsurge of terrorist attacks.

Fall festival plans readied

JEFFERSONVILLE — Jeffersonville Elementary School PTC President Dick Cline announced plans for this year's fall festival to be held October 29.

The festival will include a chili supper, a general store, bingo, games for the children, a king and queen contest, and turkey raffles.

Mrs. Gordon McCarty announced a "readathon" will begin on October 13 and a "book fair" will start November 7.

After the business meeting, cider and doughnuts were served during the open house. The next meeting will be held Nov. 7.

Municipal Court

Two local residents were found guilty of disorderly conduct during separate hearings Tuesday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Samuel R. Bowers, 74, of 930 E. Market St., was found guilty on charges stemming from a disturbance at his residence Monday afternoon. Municipal Court Judge John P. Case fined Bowers $50 and costs, but then suspended the fine and costs, placing the man on one-year probation.

Washington C.H. police officers had arrested Bowers on a private warrant after he had struck another man with a cane. The dispute had reportedly begun over the loudness of a radio.

Nineteen-year-old Sue Jester, 217 East St., was fined $15 and court costs after being convicted of disorderly conduct. Local police officers arrested her early Saturday.

Senate eyes bingo measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The troublesome issue of bingo regulation in Ohio is expected to go before the full Senate before adjournment of the abbreviated October session on Thursday.

A House-approved bill intended to close loopholes in the existing charitable bingo law was recommended for passage in a 6-1 vote by the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday. The bill is sponsored by Rep. Leonard J. Camera, D-53 Lorain.

As revised by the Senate panel, the legislation would permit bona fide charitable groups to hold two bingo games a week. Groups that own their own hall could bypass one game, and instead rent to another charitable organization for the second bingo game during the same week.

A maximum of $250 could be charged for rent under such conditions and used without restrictions. Proceeds from bingo games, except for minimal expenses, must go to charitable causes.

Festivals involving nonbingo "schemes of chance" could be conducted only by organizations that owned the premises or on government-leased property.

The focus of abuse of the existing law has been through loopholes in the rental clauses according to Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus.

"The problem has come from the charitable organization that does not own, or does not choose to own, its own hall," O'Shaughnessy said.

Here are some other important elements of the legislation as it was reported out of committee:

—Bars bingo workers from receiving payment for their services; current law bars payment, but not receipt of same.

—Expand definition of veterans organizations eligible to hold bingo games to include any post of a national vets group, if it has been operating in Ohio for at least 20 years and has a national dues-paying membership of at least 5,000.

—Bans "midnight bingo" by outlawing games that start after midnight or before 10 a.m.

Free exchange boon to steel industry, Armco manager says

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Free exchange of steelmaking technology has kept the U.S. steel industry in competition, not hurt it, according to the manager of Armco Steel's Middletown Works.

However, C.G. Kramer said the industry cannot compete when the foreign producers "don't play by the same rules."

Kramer was asked why steel producers train foreign producers in steelmaking techniques if they don't welcome the competition.

"Plain enough," said Kramer. "Obviously, it does more good than harm. We all benefit from foreign steel technology."

Kramer, who helped set up a steel mill in France seven years ago, said Armco continues to exchange visits with overseas firms and has a committee for exchange of technology with the Nippon Steel Co. of Japan.

"You can't keep anything a secret very long in steel," Kramer said.

Foreign technology has benefited the Middletown plant with a new Off Gas basic oxygen furnace, a continuous steel caster, the multimillion dollar coke plant now under construction and the $1 billion expansion in the 1960s.

"We went all around the world to make sure we had the best and most modern steelmaking equipment possible," Kramer said. "If we hadn't, there's no way we'd be able to compete now."

The move to exchange information came after World War II because overseas facilities had been destroyed.

"Frankly, there were only two choices open to us then. The overseas nations, weakened by years of war, could have rebuilt with our know-how or with Russian know-how. You know how we'd stand on that then and now."

"We have stayed with it because we can't keep secrets in steel very long," Kramer said.

"We welcome fair competition, domestic or foreign, but there's a difference between the exchange of technology that benefits both parties and dumping of steel in our market below the cost of production."

"It's a different problem entirely. This is what we're trying to get our government to realize," Kramer said of steel industry efforts to reduce the importation of cheap, foreign steel through federal regulation.

"We can compete with anybody, as long as we play under the same rules."

Club gives $925 to Chamber

CB jamboree nets nearly $4,000

The Fayette County Night Owls Citizen Band Radio Club realized a net profit of nearly $4,000 on a two-day Camp-O-Ree in mid-September.

Program chairman Dave Brickles reported gross income of $9,267 and expenses of $5,405 for net proceeds of $3,862. Included in the "expenses" is a small percentage of the income which remains in the club's building fund for the eventual purchase of a meeting site.

The first allocation from the proceeds was made to the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce. President Sonny Rittenhouse presented Chamber president John Lachat with a check for $965, representing 25 per cent of the proceeds.

Lachat thanked the club and noted that the check will be a significant assist to the Chamber's ailing finances.

The remainder of the proceeds will be designated to a variety of civic projects. Among the club's activities in the past have been scholarships to both local high schools, gifts for youngsters at the Fayette County Children's Home, equipment purchases for the police department to aid in the Crime Busters program, and assistance to families burned out of their homes.

The major portion of the proceeds came from sale of tickets on grand prizes valued at some $1,200. They included a home base radio unit, a car CB, a television and cash. Nearly $4,000 in tickets were sold.

Additional door prize ticket sales (each person attending received one door prize ticket free) brought another $1,850. More than 200 prizes donated by local merchants were given away. Retail value of these gifts was in excess of $1,800.

LOVE THAT PAPERWORK — Dave Brickles, chairman of the Night Owls September Camp-O-Ree, and John Lachat, Chamber of Commerce president, review the club's financial statement for the event. With proceeds reaching nearly $4,000, it's the type of paperwork anyone could enjoy. The Camp-O-Ree at the Fayette County Fairgrounds drew some 5,000 people.

Another $2,400 came from sale of food and drinks, but expenses in this department ranged well over $1,000.

The Camp-O-Ree attracted some 5,000 persons to the Fayette County Fairgrounds. Of these about 4,000 were CB radio buffs and their families.

About 1,000 local residents were also in attendance.

Brickles was quite pleased with the club's first attempt at a two-day jamboree. The club had set a goal of $4,000 in proceeds and fell less than $150 short of that goal.

Canfora ousted in recall vote

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — Albert Canfora, a local councilman who protested gymnasium construction at Kent State University where his son was wounded by Ohio National Guard fire in 1970, has been ousted in a recall election.

Canfora, 51, was arrested during a protest on the campus in July.

"The thing that beat me was the kind of people that went after me and their campaign," Canfora said after the special election Tuesday.

By more than a 3-to-1 margin — 474-133 — Canfora lost the seat he was last elected to in 1975 in this northeastern Ohio community of 33,000 just southwest of Akron.

"I didn't have the time to go to the people of my ward on this. Maybe if I had taken the issue to the people, it would have turned out differently," said Canfora.

Canfora said he planned to ask the Ohio Supreme Court today to nullify the election until he gets a full court hearing on his efforts to void several recall petition signatures.

He contends that 47 of the 227 signatures on the petitions are invalid.

The city council, meanwhile, will appoint a successor to fill out Canfora's term, which ends in 1979.

Canfora's opponents rejoiced Tuesday night over his defeat.

"Mr. Canfora was the best worker for his own defeat. People were sick and tired of him harassing them for signing petitions," Eupha McGalliard said.

She said she is interested in taking over Canfora's council seat. The city council has 30 days to name Canfora's replacement.

WINTER FUN INDOORS WITH PLANTS

Glass bowls, jars and bottles containing living greenery make excellent presents any time of year, for relatives and friends... or yourself. A berry bowl or terrarium full of woodsy plants is a nice way to bring some of the outdoors indoors, so you can enjoy green living plants during winter's gray days.

These do-it-yourself, miniature, enclosed gardens are tightly sealed, so they don't create a pollen or other health hazard. And when completed, they're tiny ecosystems that can demonstrate both water and carbon dioxide cycles to youngsters.

When kids collect plants from outdoors, they need not threaten nature's large ecosystem, if they always leave the best plants to continue growing, and take only those that are overcrowding an area and are likely to die out. Of course, never pick endangered species.

Kids can start with any modest-sized, wide-mouth container - a small bowl or a squatting pint canning jar or maybe an instant coffee jar. Once youngsters learn to plant these, they can graduate to narrow-neck containers. Searching for just the right one can be almost as much fun as filling it with plants.

Cover the container's bottom with clean gravel, some woodsy loam, and a few tiny lumps of charcoal. The charcoal will offset any acid or other unpleasant odors that occasionally develop inside an enclosed system.

Arrange plants inside for simplicity, harmony and balance. Consider the most common mosses and tiny ferns - and of course, a few tiny colorful sprigs for that all important color accent. Fern, mosses and ground pine, used sparingly for height accents, are good too.

Remember not to overcrowd mini-terrariums with too many plants. And don't fertilize or use rich garden loam, or plants will too soon outgrow their confines.

For more information about 4-H winter projects call the County Extension Office at 335-1150.

Young pedestrian hurt at intersection

Two injured in city auto accidents

A 10-year-old Washington C.H. girl was injured Monday when she was struck by a car in the intersection of W. Elm and High streets.

A county life squad unit transported Dianna D. Allemang, 10, of 502 Waverly Ave. to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where she was treated for minor injuries and later released.

According to a Washington C.H. Police Department report, Jimmy McCallister, 21, 928 S. Hinde St., stated he approached the intersection on W. Elm Street when the girl rode her bicycle through a red traffic signal on High Street directly into his path. Police officers reported witnesses confirmed McCallister's account of the accident, which occurred about 5:30 Monday afternoon.

Another local resident was slightly injured in a two-car collision at S. Fayette and E. East streets Tuesday night.

Police officers reported Caroline Stallman, 32, of 521 E. Elm St., claimed injury and was taken to the county hospital in a Fayette County Life Squad unit. The woman was treated and released later. She reportedly told investigating police officers she was northbound on Fayette Street when another car ran a red traffic signal from East Street into her path.

The other driver, Cherie L. Woods, 23, of 567 Trace Court, stated to police she was eastbound on East Street when Ms. Stallman's car ran a red light. Police officers said there were no witnesses. Both vehicles sustained minor damage in the 9:21 p.m. accident.

Police officers reported an accident on E. Court Street near Fayette Street about 7:03 Tuesday night.

Kathleen R. Mason, 16, 615 Perdue Plaza, reportedly saw a car stop in front of her, but struck the rear of the vehicle when the wet pavement prevented her from stopping. Police officers cited Miss Mason for failure to maintain an assured clear distance.

The other driver was Rex A. Leeth, 18, of 3458 Culpepper Trace Road. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Police officers also cited James W. Wheeler, 29, of Milledgeville, after he backed into another car on Washington Avenue just east of Grove Avenue around 5:08 p.m. Tuesday.

Wheeler backed across the street from a driveway at 812 Washington Ave. and struck a car belonging to Earl Kreitzer of 812 Washington Ave. Only Kreitzer's vehicle received minor damage. Wheeler was cited for backing without safety.

In one other accident Tuesday night, Bryan K. Lucas, 19, of New Martinsburg, was cited for failure to control after he applied his brakes on Ogle Street near Yeoman Street, slid on the wet pavement and struck a utility pole. The accident occurred about 11:20 p.m. No injuries were reported.

RED LIGHT DISPUTED—Two cars (pictured here) collided in the intersection of S. Fayette and E. East streets Tuesday night and both drivers claimed the other driver ran a red light. One woman, Caroline Stallman, 32, 521 E. Elm St., was reportedly injured and was taken to Fayette

On Declaration of Independence

Rotarians receive lesson in history

A dramatic history lesson was given to members of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club at their noon luncheon meeting Tuesday.

Ed Mason, community relations director for the Columbus Dispatch, impersonated Charles Thomson, secretary of the First Continental Congress, and provided Rotarians with a vivid first person account of some of the men who signed the Declaration of Independence.

Clad in a colonial costume complete with a three-cornered hat and gold shoe buckles, Mason said a total of 56 men signed the historic document. John Hancock and Thomson were the only men who signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. The last person signed five years later.

Mason said the founding fathers were not "a bunch of wide-eyed radicals." Thirty were judges or lawyers, five were ministers, six were doctors, nine were businessmen, 15 were plantation owners and two were printers.

In pointing out the "tremendous sacrifice made because of their beliefs and their dedication to the idea of freedom," Mason said one-third of the men signing the declaration suffered financial disasters. Several were captured and tortured in enemy prisons.

"All had security, but valued their freedom more," said Mason as he strode up and down the center aisle of the Country Club.

Mason, a history buff who said he's spent some 20 years researching the Revolutionary War era, pointed out that the war with the British was not over independence alone.

He said after the British government attempted to tax the colonies to retire tremendous war debts incurred in the conflict with France, the war started. After the conflict had begun, he said,

New heat source being developed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new energy source for home heat pumps is being developed at Battelle Laboratories in Columbus for the U.S. Department of Energy.

The source is a low-temperature, liquid-heating solar collector. Currently, collectors use a blackened absorber plate to collect the sun's rays. The plate is heated by the rays and transmits its energy to a coolant fluid.

was when the colonists began thinking about their independence from the king's rule.

He said the battle at Valley Forge was "the crucible where the spirit of the nation was formed," especially after taking into consideration that the average age of the soldiers there was only 17.

The meeting was conducted by club president Jack Alkire. The program was arranged by Paul Crosby.

Darrell French of Wilmington was a visiting Rotarian. Guests were Robert McArthur with Donald Thompson, Kenneth Craig with Crosby, the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly with Joseph Peters and Kaye Bartlett with the Rev. Dr. Leroy Davis. Mike Toppins of Miami Trace High School was a student guest.

Below-cost steel pricing hit

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
PITTSBURGH (AP) — If domestic steelmakers practiced the same below-cost pricing used by foreign exporters to the American market "it wouldn't take 60 days to throw them in jail," said Edgar B. Speer, U.S. Steel Corp. chairman.

The Clayton Act (of 1914) outlawed the pricing of goods below cost in order to drive competition out of business, and the Trade Act of 1974 restated it, said Speer, reading the latter act's statement of purposes.

Paragraph 4 of the statement declares as one of the aims "to provide adequate procedures to safeguard American industry and labor against unfair or injurious import competition." Section 301 authorizes the President to impose quotas.

But, he said, when foreign producers sell at below production costs "we think it's lovely" instead of enforcing promptly the legislation on the books. The 20 million tons of imported steel, he indicated, is the equivalent of 100,000 domestic jobs.

Eager to point out the implications of steel's difficulties for the local and national economies, the chairman contrasted the $30-a-ton discount obtained by the American buyer of foreign steel with what he said were much higher costs in unemployment compensation and lost domestic production.

In a blunt interview Oct. 12, the day before he and other steel company executives met at the White House, Speer expressed resentment over what he felt was a failure of Washington to respond to the industry's difficulties.

Since 1974, he said, steel producers have tried without success to win the ear of federal officials about imports. "Now we're invited down in 1977," he paused. "Invited," he said again, drawing out the pronunciation. "In 1977 ... big deal."

Speer said the industry finally won attention to its problems — imports, environmental regulations, capital shortage — only when they became social problems, with plants closing and "60,000 people hitting the bricks."

He was said to be more optimistic after the meeting with President Jimmy Carter, encouraged by the likelihood of limits on "dumped" imports as well as possible relief from strict enforcement of environmental regulations.

Commenting on a wide range of steel-related subjects, Speer referred to what he claimed was the illogical administration of environmental regulations and interference by government in pricing.

"We're in 100 per cent agreement with the objectives" of the environmental effort, he said, but he questioned the "uneconomic" applications of the regulations.

It is unrealistic to expect companies to spend millions of dollars refitting plants that soon will be phased out, he said, advocating instead that newly built plants only be held to "standards that meet the best known technology."

Chairman also of the American Iron and Steel Institute, and thus a chief industry spokesman, Speer said some of the industry's problems were compounded by Washington's attitude toward pricing. In effect, steel is a regulated industry, he said.

"It is not formally regulated, but informally it is just as tightly regulated as other basic industries," he said, naming among them natural gas, oil and transportation.

In shirtsleeves, speaking tartly, Speer observed that "every industry the government puts under control is in trouble." Leaning forward, he snapped that the government couldn't operate a house of ill repute at a profit.

FUTURE BLEAK — Wilmington College Agricultural Department Chairman Dr. Donald Chafin feeds his two riding horses while pondering the future of animal draft power on the nation's farms.

Despite rise in equine population

Working farm horse future grim

WILMINGTON, Ohio — While the nation's horse population has been growing in recent years, there's not much future for old Dobbin as a working partner on the nation's farms, according to the chairman of the agriculture department at Wilmington College.

"The rise in the nation's horse population is entirely due to an increase in pleasure riding," says Dr. Donald Chafin.

"But a return to using animal horse power on the farm in order to save fuel energy is a dream that simply isn't in the cards."

Chafin, who is an agricultural economist, says a return to animal power on the nation's farms would be economically unfeasible.

"Figures I have seen indicate that a return to the 1918 type of agriculture, when horses and mules were still in heavy use, would require some 61 million horses and mules in order to produce today's crops," Chafin says.

"Can you imagine how much feed that would require, just to supply those draft animals?"

Using horses and mules today would also mean higher food prices for the nation, Chafin says.

"We would have to use about half of our present crop land just to feed those 61 million draft animals."

That would mean less land for human food needs and a consequential rise in food prices, he adds.

The horse uses too much energy in relation to his output as a power source, Chafin explains.

"Hay and oats and other horse feeds are energy sources just as are oil and gasoline," Chafin says.

"We could save on oil and gasoline by switching to horses and mules and dropping tractors and similar farm machinery, but the price we would pay for such a switch-over would be too high, much more than we would realize from the lesser use of oil and gasoline."

Chafin has nothing personal against horses; he has two riding horses at his home outside Wilmington.

"A horse can be a wonderful companion," he says.

"But as an efficient power source on the farm, I'm afraid he just can't compete."

State withholds Medicaid checks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — October Medicaid payment checks for 69 nursing homes which have lost their certification for federal subsidies have been withheld by the welfare department, Director Kenneth B. Creasy announced Tuesday.

But the nursing homes could get a temporary reprieve in a few days when the General Assembly votes on the capital improvements bill which contains an amendment to continue Medicaid payments to decertified homes until Dec. 1.

Creasy acted after Atty. Gen. William J. Brown advised that the state no longer may pick up the federal share of Medicaid payments for decertified nursing homes.

A total of 74 homes in Ohio have lost their federal certification for failing to meet U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare standards. Checks for five of them were not held up by the welfare department because they still are within the federal government's 30-day grace period to meet standards.

Federal subsidies amount to 55 per cent of Medicaid care costs for welfare recipient patients in nursing homes.

Jailbreaker back in prison awaiting charge of escape

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — Harold Hemminger is "the one that got away" — over and over again. He is back in jail after four years on the lam, awaiting trial on charges of escape, of course.

"Harry's one of the best jailbreakers there ever was," said an officer assigned to keep him from slipping out of the courtroom in an appearance before Circuit Judge William Caisley.

It is hard to find a jailer or prisoner who won't smile when talking about Hemminger. He's never taken a hostage or harmed a guard during any of his escapes. "Hell," he said with a grin during an interview. "I ain't out to hurt anybody."

Hemminger, 36, was recaptured earlier this month in Viroqua, Wis., after spending four years "hunting and raising kids" when he was supposed to be in Pontiac Correctional Center in Illinois.

He escaped in 1973 after being sentenced a year earlier to a three-to-10-year term for burglary.

In 1971, Hemminger escaped from the maximum security facility at Waupun, Wis., where he also was serving a sentence for burglary.

Supporting roles playing big part

By KATHI JENKINS

Any staged production cannot be successful without the help of several supporting roles. Like other dramatic presentations, the Miami Trace fall play, "Pillow Talk" has many of these parts.

"Pillow Talk" revolves around the lives of Jan Morrow, played by Sheri Holbrook, and Brad Allen, portrayed by Mike Camstra, who share a party line in New York City. Jan is an interior decorator for many of the upperclass families in the city. Matt Wald has been cast in the role of Pierot, Jan's assistant. Pierot is very upset that Jan cannot seem to complete any of her business calls due to the excessive use of the phone by her party line partner. Near chaos occurs when Jan entertains two prospective clients, Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Ames. Cindy Dennis and Susan Stahl play these two aristocratic women who are surprised to find a renowned decorator so unorganized.

On the other end of the party line, Brad is singing songs across the wires to his lady loves. Among these are Marie, Eileen, and Yvette, with Beth Barton as Marie, Debbie Southworth as Eileen, and Melissa Orihood as Yvette.

Adding a touch of humor to the drama is Pam Hollar, portraying Bessie, Brad's maid. Other supporting characters are those of the supervisor from the phone company who is played by Melody Spaulding, the policeman who is portrayed by Don Melvin and Miss Conrad, also from the phone company, characterized by Susan Cowman. John Barney brings the character of Graham the detective to life while Alisa Hughes portrays a singer in a club, and Jona St. Clair, as Tilda, and Terri Vermillion, as Ann, assist Jan in decorating apartments.

Lisa Perrill, as Beth, Diana Moore, as Carol, and Ellen Zoodsma, as Sue, also help Jan.

Ellen Zoodsma is the operator's voice and Dan Santos, the Man. Kevin Birchfield and Fred Melvin play waiters in the St. Regis. Tammy Kirk is a guest there.

The comedy "Pillow Talk," under the director of Mrs. Marie Feters and student co-directors Lynne Acton and Don Eyre, will be presented on November 18 and 19 at 8 p.m. in the Miami Trace High School auditorium.

Panthers select Homecoming court

By LORAIN MOORE

The 1977 Miami Trace Homecoming Court consists of Dawn Ware, Freshman attendant, Tracy Taylor, Sophomore attendant, Dianne Stuckey, Junior attendant, Vicki Bennett, Senior attendant, and Janet Dorn, Queen.

Dawn says that she was "shocked to death" to hear her name. She feels it is a great honor and she is happy to be attendant. Dawn would like to say thank you to her friends for their encouragement and the people that voted for her.

and she still feels like she is in a dream, a very good dream she adds.

And finally we come to our 1977 Homecoming Queen, Janet Dorn. She feels great about being queen and she says that she is really excited about the game Friday evening. Janet says that being homecoming Queen was a big surprise to her but is a wonderful privilege to represent Miami Trace.

Janet would like to thank the whole student body especially the seniors for their support and votes.

Tracy was shocked to hear the name also, but after she she got over the shock, she became extremely happy, because she has never won anything like this before. Tracy feels that Lisa Lyons helped build her confidence in herself and would like to thank Lisa for this. She would also like to thank everyone that voted for her.

Dianne Stuckey's comments were "I would like to thank God for letting this happen, my parents and family, the junior class and a special thanks to the other nominees, I love you all." Dianne feels that it is great that the junior class wanted her to represent them.

Vicki Bennett would like to thank the students from Laurel Oaks because their votes broke the tie and caused her to be elected. She would also like to thank all of the people who supported her with their votes.

Vicki said that her whole body went numb when they announced her name

Yankees win 21st world championship

Reggie, Reggie, Reggie

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson, the man who stirred the drink, made it a champagne cocktail. With three magnificently dramatic home runs, he gift-wrapped the New York Yankees' 21st World Series championship.

"I am the straw that stirs the drink," Jackson said before he had ever batted for the Yankees in a major league game. "(Catcher and captain Thurman) Munson can only stir it bad."

Though that comment alienated Munson and touched off the Yankees' soap opera season of conflict and controversy, all was forgotten Tuesday night. Jackson powered New York to an 8-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and gave the Yankees the World Series, four games to two.

"Ah, the taste of victory," Jackson said, swigging a bottle of champagne in the jubilant Yankees locker room. "This symbolizes victory and being champions."

One year after the Yankees suffered World Series disgrace, a four-game sweep by Cincinnati last October, the Yankees were No. 1, the only number acceptable to owner George Steinbrenner.

Steinbrenner, who bought the Yankees in 1973, is the architect of the Yankees' supremely successful season. It was Steinbrenner who spent $2.9 million to bring the free-agent Jackson to New York.

"The next morning, after we were beaten in four straight by Cincinnati, we began working on this year," Steinbrenner said. "I swore it was not gonna happen again."

"Now, we're on top and we're gonna stay there."

More than any other player, Jackson drove the Yankees to the top. The Series' Most Valuable Player with a record-breaking five homers and a Series-leading .450 batting average, Jackson stroked a hot bat in September to fire the Yankees to the American League East Division crown.

All his hitting heroics helped him overcome a season of mental pressure that would crumble a lesser man. First, there was the spring training remark that degraded Munson, the Most Valuable Player in the AL last year.

Soon after the remark appeared in a national magazine, Jackson has his celebrated run-in with Manager Billy Martin on national television. The two proud men argued and nearly came to blows in their dugout in Boston, and the TV cameras recorded every moment.

But Tuesday night was a time for the Yankees to bask in the thrill of their victory and the awe of witnessing Jackson's home runs, one of the most powerful and theatrical feats in World Series annals.

"He beat us single-handedly," said Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey. "I've never seen a performance like that in the World Series."

It was the sun and the moon of superstar performances.

"Guys throw around the word superstar a lot," said Jackson. "Guys like Ruth, DiMaggio, Mays, Clemente. But I can say I had one day like those guys."

What Jackson did was tie Babe Ruth's record of three homers in one Series game. It started as if Chris Chambliss would be the hitting hero as he had been last year in New York's playoff conquest of the Kansas City Royals. Burt Hooton walked Jackson on four straight pitches in the second inning, and saw him score on Chambliss' home run.

Then Jackson took matters into his own hands. He smashed a screaming line drive into the right field stands on Hooton's first pitch to him in the fourth. Then, in the fifth, he sent one from Elias Sosa on a similar fast trip into the right field seats.

"The balls were in. That's how they tried to pitch me all Series," said Jackson. "You can pitch me in, but don't knock on the door and announce it. Even a dummy will adjust and I adjusted."

Charlie Hough, a knuckleball pitcher, was hurling the eighth inning. He threw his first pitch down and over the plate, but the result was the same: a mammoth homer, this time to center field, an estimated 450 feet away.

"Nothing can top this," said Jackson. "Who the hell is going to hit three homers to decide a World Series? Hell, I'm not."

But he did.

In Game 5, Jackson homered on his last at-bat. So he ended up smashing home runs on each of his last four swings. Overall in the Series, Jackson broke records for most homers (5), most runs scored (10), most consecutive homers in two games (4) and most total bases (25).

The total base record for a six-game Series previously belonged to Martin, the former Yankee second baseman.

"That's fantastic that he broke my record," said Martin. "Reggie's a super guy. Next year will be a lot easier for him."

It should also be easier for Martin, given a big bonus earlier Tuesday by Steinbrenner, who was on the verge of firing his fiery manager several times this season.

"Even the guy who won a million dollars in the lottery can't be as happy as I am," Martin said. "Everything is worthwhile now."

The opposite emotion filled the Los Angeles locker room.

"Great game. You put on quite an exhibition," a somber Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda told Jackson, extending his hand.

So the Dodgers traveled to New York in vain. Their outfielders and relief pitchers in the bullpen were showered with garbage by hostile Yankee fans; Garvey and Dave Lopes received death threats Monday night.

But it still was a wonderful season for the happiness boys from Los Angeles. Their April boom crushed Cincinnati and kept the Reds from a shot at a third straight World Series crown.

"We lived by the long ball all season long and we died by the long ball in the Series," said Lasorda, whose club led the National League in homers and smacked a record-tying nine in the Series, including Reggie Smith's homer Tuesday night.

Smith's third-inning solo homer, his third of the Series, had coupled with Steve Garvey's two-run, first-inning triple to give Los Angeles a brief 3-2 lead. But that was buried under the explosion of Jackson's power; a ninth-inning Dodgers run served only to delay the Yankees' celebration.

"I'm proud of the way the guys battled all year long," said Lasorda, the rookie Dodgers manager.

Mike Torrez, the winning pitcher in the pivotal third game and again in the climactic sixth game, yielded nine hits Tuesday night.

"It was a struggling-type game," he said big right-hander, who, if he remains unsigned, will be eligible for the Nov. 4 re-entry draft. "Reggie was just beautiful. Out of sight."

Buckeyes rated 63-point favorites

Notre Dame favored over USC; So. Methodist to defeat Longhorns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — "You can say we really were looking ahead to Notre Dame," Southern Cal quarterback Rob Hertel said after the Trojans breezed past Oregon 33-15 last weekend when some observers wouldn't have been surprised to see the score approach the century mark.

That's an excellent line. We'll use it as the reason last week's forecasting score was a paltry 42 right and 22 wrong with three ties for a .656 percentage, dropping the season count to 298-122-10 — 710.

Fans and alumni, we were looking ahead to both Notre Dame and Southern Cal this weekend.

Despite a 4-1 record, Notre Dame has been somewhat disappointing. The Irish needed an injury to Pitt's quarterback to beat the Panthers, lost to Mississippi, used a frantic fourth-quarter rally to defeat Purdue and struggled past Michigan State before blanking Army 24-0.

ND quarterback Joe Montana could have said the Irish were looking ahead to Southern Cal, but he didn't. So we'll say it ... Notre Dame 24-21.

Michigan at Minnesota: This one's for the Little Brown Jug and the Wolverines can be expected to go for Minnesota's jugular ... Michigan 38-7.

Texas at Southern Methodist: We keep picking against Texas but the Longhorns have come through the last two weeks with flying colors against Oklahoma and Arkansas. What better time could there be for a letdown than against the pesky Mustangs? Upset Special of the Week ... SMU 27-23.

Ohio State at Northwestern: The Buckeyes will be out to roll up a point total that Michigan will be hard-pressed to match two weeks hence ... Ohio State 63-0.

Iowa State at Oklahoma: Obviously, Iowa State was keeping something in reserve when it lost to Iowa and was anything but imposing against the likes of Bowling Green and Dayton. In Big Eight play, though, the Cyclones have blanked Missouri and upset Nebraska. The Sooners also have been rather unimpressive since that thrilling triumph over Ohio State ... Oklahoma 27-17.

Colorado at Nebraska: Neither one of these teams can afford a loss in the Big Eight race but, barring a tie, someone's gonna get one ... Colorado 24-21.

Kentucky at Georgia: Can't understand why this game's virtually a pick-'em affair. Could it be that Kentucky is coming off three tough contests against Penn State, Mississippi State and Louisiana State? The Wildcats mave made us believers ... Kentucky 27-17.

Houston at Arkansas: The Razorbacks seem to be for real despite that bitter loss to Texas. The Cougars were for real until they lost quarterback Danny Davis ... Arkansas 20-15.

West Virginia at Penn State: If you're not old enough to vote, you're not old enough to remember the last time West Virginia failed to lose to Penn State. The year was 1958 and the score was 14-14. The last time the Mountaineers won? Ah, that was in 1955 by a 21-7 score ... Penn State 28-17.

California at UCLA: Coach Terry Donahue says the Bruins aren't out of the Pac-8 race yet, but they will be if they lose this one ... UCLA 20-17.

Brigham Young at Wyoming: Early in the season, they were asking what BYU quarterback Gifford Nielsen could do for an encore. Now, with Nielsen out with a knee injury, they're asking what soph sensation Marc Wilson, who fired seven touchdown passes against Colorado State last week, can do for an encore. As last year's WAC co-champs slug it out ... Brigham Young 37-21.

North Carolina State at Clemson: Clemson likes to call its stadium Death Valley, but the Tigers have been death on most opponents almost everywhere this season ... Clemson 29-22.

Other games:
Midwest — Ball State 32, Cal Poly-Pomona 22; Bowling Green 21, Miami, O. 14; Central Michigan 21, Akron 10; Cincinnati 35, Tulsa 7; Kent State 24, Eastern Michigan 20; Indiana 24, Illinois 19; Oklahoma State 27, Kansas 17; Missouri 30, Kansas State 21; Southern Illinois 15, Northern Illinois 14; Purdue 24, Iowa 18; Ohio U. 24, Toledo 20; Western Michigan 34, Marshall 14; Wichita State 27, Drake 7; Wisconsin 30, Michigan State 21.

Ties the Babe's home run record

Jackson stirs Yankees well

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent
Okay, Reggie, you have proven your point. Let no man say otherwise. You are indeed the straw that stirs the drink. You are the eye of the storm. You are the spark that fires the ignition. You make things happen.

Let it be your monument in history: The ball player who never hit .300 in a regular season yet the man who could always reach back for that special kind of magic that turns paupers into kings.

Even your once-bitter rival, Thurman Munson, had to admit it.

"Without him," said Munson, "we wouldn't have won the pennant. Without him, we wouldn't have won the World Series."

Such is the story of the baseball life of Reginald Martinez Jackson, the Wyncote, Pa., tailor's son whose ability to produce under pressure sparked the Oakland A's to World Championships in 1972, 1973 and 1974.

Now you have done it for the proud and haughty New York Yankees, just as your boss and benefactor, George Steinbrenner III, said you would.

A record five home runs in the World Series, three in one game, four in four official atbats, 10 runs scored, eight runs batted in, a .450 batting average — an individual performance on a level with the immortals.

"The word superstar is overused," Ruth, DiMaggio, Mays, Clemente," you told reporters modestly. "But I can say I had one day like those guys."

Indeed you did. But it wasn't easy. Remember all those lonely, frustrating moments during the summer.

You were the "Teacher's Pet." The boss took you in his limousine and showed you the town. He signed you to a $2.9-million contract.

This made you the most unpopular man in the Yankees clubhouse. Munson, the Most Valuable Player of the previous year, got mad when you told a magazine writer that you were "the straw that stirred the drink." You said Munson could only stir it bad.

It was an undiplomatic thing to say, but you are not diplomatic. You say what comes to your tongue. No subtleties. No deviousness. You take the consequences.

The consequences were costly. Munson refused to shake your hand. Third baseman Graig Nettles made unhappy noises. Players with the same color of dark skin moved their lockers to the other side of the room.

There you sat, alone and brooding, on your locker stool — not liked by the manager and ignored by almost everyone but backup catcher Fran Healy, whose friendship never wavered.

The manager, accustomed to center stage, resented you. He wouldn't bat you cleanup. Once he yanked you in front of a national television audience and, when you objected to the indignity, the two of you almost came to blows in the dugout.

Yet it was you who interceded when the manager was about to be fired. You helped save his job.

It was an agonizing summer. The fans were goaded by a hostile press. They booed you at every turn. Pressures, even with your princely salary, became almost unbearable.

Your father quit coming up from Philadelphia to watch you play. Your mother wouldn't turn on the radio.

Remember how you sat in your loneliness and said to yourself, "Why do I have to take all of this stuff? I have a good job waiting for me outside."

Quitting would have been easy, but it was not your way. It was a word you didn't know. You owed too much to too many, so you stuck it out.

You were "Mister September" in the Yankees' fierce pennant drive. You closed your lips and tightened the grip on your bat. You became the Yankees' sparkplug, and everybody knew it. Your life changed.

And the climax came just before 11 p.m. on a chilly Tuesday night when you propelled your third home run of the evening into the black-painted unoccupied bleachers in deep center field.

And out there in center field somewhere, the TV cameras zeroed in on a bronze plaque of the great Babe Ruth. The old Bambino seemed to wear a smile.

football clash with Big Ten rival Northwestern this Saturday, Hayes said flatly, "We are going to beat them."

Northwestern has lost 22 of its last 23 games. Hayes cannot conceive of his Buckeyes becoming Northwestern's first victim of the season, and said so in a telephone interview with the Chicago Football Writers Tuesday.

"They could do it if we allowed them, but we're not going to allow them to beat us," said Woody. "Not only will we be prepared but we have better football players and more of them. For that reason we'll win."

"I have great respect for John Pont as a coach and had him as a player in college and wouldn't take him lightly," said Hayes.

Miami Trace-Circleville rivalry resumes

Panthers eye fourth straight title with 'first step to gold'

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Editor
"This is the first step to the gold," stated Panther head coach Fred Zechman, looking forward to this Friday's showdown with Circleville. Both teams are 3-0 in league competition with just four more weeks on the schedule.

"Whoever wins this one has the only chance for the gold football," Zechman continued. "Circleville and Miami Trace have always had super games even if it has meant nothing. We're always both up for each other."

"This year will be no different. It's the big key in our season because only one of the two teams will have a shot at the gold football. We're putting it all on the line, because we have to. The last three years, the Circleville game has meant the SCOL title."

"They have things completely turned around from the beginning of the season. The good coach that (head Tiger boss Larry) Cook is, he has his personnel turned around and Circleville is a much better team because of it. In their last two games against Greenfield and Wilmington, they have played some super football."

"Cook has changed his offensive and defensive philosophies from the first part of the season and, as a result, they have won their last three in a row. If they beat us, then all they have is Washington C.H. standing in their way for a gold football. We don't get a second chance," Zechman concluded.

Indeed, the last three Circleville-Miami Trace meetings have decided the SCOL crown. In 1974, the Panthers lost their last regular-season to the Tigers, 14-12, at Circleville to tie Trace for the title. Since then, Trace has reeled off 30 straight games without being beaten. In 1975, the Panthers whipped Circleville at MTHS and last year, whipped them again at Circleville. Each year, the Panthers have won the SCOL crown.

Abdul-Jabbar, Benson get NBA in full swing

By The Associated Press
It took just a little more than two minutes for the National Basketball Association season to get into full swing.

That's when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers decided his elbowing joust with Kent Benson, Milwaukee's prize rookie, had gone on long enough.

So Abdul-Jabbar uncorked a right-hand punch that would have made Muhammad Ali proud, catching Benson flush on the right side of his face and knocking the 6-foot-11, 245-pounder to the hardwood of Milwaukee Arena.

Benson had to leave the game, suffering from a mild concussion and cuts around his right eye. Abdul-Jabbar was assessed a punching foul and ejected from the contest, won by Milwaukee 117-112 behind Brian Winters' 26 points.

In other NBA season openers, the New York Knicks beat the Kansas City Kings 120-113, the Chicago Bulls edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 91-88, the Detroit Pistons defeated the New Jersey Nets 110-93 and the Phoenix Suns stopped the Golden State Warriors 100-83.

Benson and Abdul-Jabbar each blamed the other for starting the contact that led to the one-punch kayo 2:09 into the first quarter of the Lakers-Bucks battle.

"Coming up the floor, Kareem was elbowing me," said Benson, the two-time All-American from Indiana and first player chosen in the NBA's college draft. "We got down the floor and I elbowed him back. I tried to play defense, and the next thing I got was a hit in the face."

"He just hauled off and threw an

Ohio prep highlights

Northwood's Bob Snider, 19-34 passes, 287 yards, five touchdowns vs. Dundee. He has 19 touchdown passes and more than 1,200 yards in six games this year.

Elyria Catholic's Bryan Thomas 43 rushes-270 yards vs. Bedford Chancel. His attempts broke the school mark of 41 Mike Smith set in 1975. Chip Otten, Coldwater's 5-6 quarterback, ran for four touchdowns and passed for another vs. St. Henry.

Art Schlichter, Miami Trace quar-

"Their offensive philosophy is the same as it's always been: they try to run it right down your throat," commented Zechman. The Tigers employ a smooth, strong rushing game. Mixed into the plays are a lot of reverses, end around option passes and other trick plays.

The Tigers rank an unimpressive fifth in SCOL offense, but the standings are a bit misleading. Circleville has 87 points for the year, but 60 of them have come in the last three games — wins over Madison Plains, McClain and Wilmington. Their offense has jelled after the first three games.

Leading the rushing attack will be fullback Joe Leahy (5-8, 155) and Dave Marshall (5-11, 163). Leahy is not big, as most fullbacks go, but he still runs with power behind a good offensive front line. Marshall is the speedster of the two and he ranks in a tie for seventh in SCOL scoring with 30 points.

Marshall and Leahy have an excellent line to run behind. Center Jeff Strawser (6-0, 193) is a good blocker as are guards Tim Pontious (5-11, 165) and Keith Lewis (5-10, 170). Both possess good size and quickness to pull outside on sweeps.

After trying two or three quarterbacks, Cook has decided upon Rich Elsea (6-0, 155) to guide the Tiger fortunes on the field. Elsea is a good quarterback, although Circleville has not passed much all year. They rank last in the league in passing with just 64 total yards through the air. Compare that with the Panthers' 1058 yards passing and the game doesn't not figure to be too much of an aerial battle.

However, when Elsea decides to throw, he has a couple of big, sure-handed receivers to look for. Tight end Mike Brudzinski (5-11, 165) and split end Mark Albright (6-1, 191) have the size and quickness to turn passes into long gainers. The Trace blanket elbow into my gut, right around the solar plexus," was the version offered by Abdul-Jabbar, winner of Most Valuable Player honors last year for the fifth time in his eight NBA seasons.

As for the basketball game, Milwaukee fell behind by 10 points in the second period but rallied behind rookie forward Marques Johnson, who tallied 21 points. The Lakers got 23 points from ex-free agent Jamaal Wilkes, 22 from Kermit Washington and 21 from Earl Tatum.

Knicks 120, Kings 113
Willis Reed's coaching debut was a success as Earl Monroe poured in 27 points on 12-for-16 shooting and the Knicks compiled a torrid .551 field goal percentage. Scott Wedman led Kansas City with 29.

Bulls 91, Cavaliers 88
Artis Gilmore scored 34 points and Mickey Johnson added 22 points and 19 rebounds for the Bulls, who held off Cleveland comebacks which moved the Cavaliers within one point three times in the fourth period.

Walt Frazier scored 20 points in his Cleveland debut, one less than Campy Russell, the club's high scorer.

Pistons 110, Nets 93
Detroit took a 57-36 first-half lead and coasted past the Nets behind Ralph Simpson's 23 points and Bob Lanier's 22 points in 28 minutes. Bird Averitt had 23 for the Nets.

Suns 100, Warriors 83
Alvan Adams scored 12 of his 27 points in the first 10 minutes of the third quarter, when Phoenix moved out to a 19-point lead, and the Warriors never threatened. Rookie Walter Davis added 20 points for the Suns, who held Golden State star Rick Barry to just six points.

terback, threw for 224 yards and two touchdowns and ran for 25 yards and two more scores vs. Hillsboro. Randy Turpin, Cincinnati Princeton tailback, 32 carries-229 yards vs. Cincinnati Bacon.

Toledo city schools will play only eight football games and will miss all of their November-December basketball contests because of closings until January. Lack of funds is the reason. The basketball games will not be rescheduled either.

secondary will have to keep tabs on them throughout the night.

"It's their tradition to have a solid defense," said Zechman, "and this year is no different. They have a tremendous defense and, with some of the changes, they've made, their defense is tough."

The Tigers have the second leading defense in the SCOL, ranking not very far behind the Panthers. They have allowed a fairly generous 1082 yards, but most of that has come between the 20-yard-lines. The Tigers have yielded only 56 points this season, an average of only nine a game.

Two defensive standouts to watch are cornerbacks Anthony Smith (6-0, 155) and Brudzinski. Both have their share of interceptions and they will be testing their skills against the top passer around, Art Schlichter.

Also to watch on defense are defensive tackle Paul Heffelfinger (6-0, 205), middle guard Eric Berlin (5-9, 155) and defensive end Jeff Paulley (5-11, 171).

Zechman has good reports from the Panther training camp concerning injuries this week. Schlichter and Bill Hanners are completely recovered from bumps and bruises they received three weeks ago versus Lancaster and should be ready to put on another show like they did last week against Hillsboro.

Also still running strong with be running backs Dennis Combs and David Creamer. Combs and Creamer are the high-scoring duo for the Panthers, having combined for 154 points this season. Their running mate in the stacked backfield is still a question mark, however.

Walter Hart, who has been filling in for the injured Brian Zurface, sustained a deep thigh bruise in last week's contest and is questionable for this week's game. If Hart is not ready to go, sophomore Mike Eddlemon or junior David Potter will fill in.

Zurface, sidelined with an ankle injury, is scheduled to visit a physician today for a progress report on his injury. Zechman was hopeful that his cast would be removed and Zurface could get the go-ahead to resume work-outs.

Panthers of the week

Four players were picked for their outstanding defensive play in last week's 60-14 win over Hillsboro. Coach Fred Zechman and his staff select the top players after viewing game films.

DAVE HENNESSY — The 5-10, 180 pound senior won headhunter of the week honors by tallying the most defensive points. He collected 35 points on the basis of 10 individual tackles, six assists and he forced one fumble. Four of his 10 individual tackles were behind the line of scrimmage.

JOHN BURR — Burr, a 5-11, 205-pound tackle shook off an ankle injury to have a tremendous night on defense. He collected 23 defensive points with seven individual tackles and six assists. Burr also chalked up four quarterback sacks in the contest.

GLENN COBB — The hard-hitting junior also tallied 23 defensive points with four individual tackles and nine assists. He also recovered a fumble and recorded one sack.

MARK SMITHSON — Zechman commented, "Smithson played his most outstanding game by far this year." The senior secondary man had 12 defensive points and some key tackles downfield. He also recorded five assisted tackles.

WONDERING WHAT "HIGH PRISER" IS COVERING UP...

Higgins' New Novel Deals With Upper Class

DREAMLAND. By George V. Higgins. Atlantic-Little, Brown. 181 Pages. $8.95.

With "Dreamland," George V. Higgins continues his move away from the world of small-time criminals. The shift is not a totally happy one.

Higgins is a good storyteller and "Dreamland" is a moderately interesting read — especially when compared to some of the other novels currently being published — but stacked up against his own earlier work it's considerably less in stature. In "The Friends of Eddie Coyle" and again in "The Digger's Game" and "Cogan's Trade," Higgins drew superb word pictures of life on the seamer side that held the reader magnetized.

Higgins' specialty is dialogue. He is expert in it as he has shown in the earlier novels, and he utilizes it again in "Dreamland." But this time, even though it still rings hard and true, it's just not as interesting, probably because the characters uttering it aren't.

Perhaps it's the shift from the lower class to the upper class, from the world of small-time crooks to the world of big-time lawyers, that causes interest to flag.

"Dreamland" is narrated by Daniel Compton Wills, the fourth generation of his family to practice with the same law firm. When Wills was growing up, his father brought into the household an English widow and her son, Andrew. Although the two boys grew up together, they did not especially like each other and the feeling remains the same over the years, particularly now that Andrew, a crack journalist, is suspicious that Wills' father was a secret agent of sorts during World War II and sets out to prove his thesis.

What is discovered by the time this novel ends is of moderate interest, but not all that exciting nor satisfying.

Lost Sea Unaffected By Drought

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer

SWEETWATER, Tenn. (AP) — America's worst drought in decades has not affected the world's largest known underground lake, the Lost Sea.

"It's unbelievable," advertising manager Joe Grant said. "It hasn't rained here in three or four weeks, but the water level hasn't dropped any. In fact, we've had to pump water out."

Lost Sea, mentioned in the Guinness Book of World Records, is a 4.5-acre lake about 300 feet underground discovered 70 years ago at the end of Craighead Caverns.

"Ben Sands, who was 13 years old at the time, crawled through a 30-inch opening of mud and water in 1905," Grant said. "He used to tell us that he made a bunch of mudballs in the dark and threw them out as far as he could. All he could hear was splashes in every direction."

Two decades ago, that crevice was blasted out. Now Lost Sea, Inc., is an Eastern Tennessee tourist attraction drawing about 130,000 persons a year from the interstate between Knoxville and Chattanooga.

After a long walk down a picturesque cave, tour groups find a vast, murky room with a 40-foot dome ceiling. Boats take the tourists around the dimly lit lake, which is about 800 feet long by 200 feet wide. It's stocked with rainbow trout, which are fed by guides. The lake ranges to 55 feet deep, except for a hole divers tried to explore two years ago.

"They found an underwater cave beneath the Lost Sea which is bigger than the cave you walked through," Grant told a reporter. "They went another 800 feet and never found the end of the cave. Before they turned around, they measured that last room — it was 95 feet from floor to ceiling and they have no idea how wide it was."

Grant said the divers estimated the subterranean cave contained twice as much water as the Lost Sea itself.

The level of the spring-fed lake rises after heavy rains and fluctuates about 15 feet between the dry summer and the wet spring.

Two pumps, which can handle 900 gallons of water a minute, keep the water from rising too high.

"And even in the middle of this drought," Grant said, "we've been pumping water out six to eight hours a week."

SPECIAL SHOW
BOSTON (AP) — A special exhibit called "Prints Of The 1970s" is being held at the Museum of Fine Arts through Dec. 4.

The museum says the show "will offer new insights into the recent graphic art of 35 contemporary printmakers, whose styles range from realism to abstraction."

Among the artists included in the exhibition are Jim Dine, Jasper Johns, Helen Frankenthaler, Claes Oldenburg and Robert Rauschenberg.

Wilmington worker, 29, killed in fall at area grain elevator

A Wilmington man was killed Tuesday when he fell from a grain elevator on a South Solon farm. Dead on arrival at Fayette County Memorial Hospital was Ronald E. Cravens, 29, of 346 Doan St., Wilmington. Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported Cravens was working on a job at 7126 Moon Evans Road in South Solon for the D and E Equipment Co. of Wilmington. He was working about 65 feet off the ground on an elevator to convey grain into a silo. Douglas Sears, who owns the farm where Cravens was working, reportedly told sheriff's deputies he believed the man was trying to hook his safety belt around a ladder when he fell to the ground. The incident occurred about 2:55 p.m.

Cravens was rushed to the hospital by a Fayette County Life Squad unit where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

A window was broken at a local tavern and restaurant sometime between Monday and Tuesday.

Washington C.H. police officers reported a window on the north side of the Possum Hollar Lounge, 2735 U.S. 22-SW, was broken by an unknown object. An unidentified person or persons reportedly threw something at the 4-foot-4-inch by 3-foot-10-inch window. The amount of damage was not estimated.

A boy's bicycle was stolen from Washington Senior High School, 1200 Willard St., Tuesday.

John Hildreth of 608 Rawlings St. reported to Washington C.H. police officers he discovered the theft around 3:10 p.m. According to the police department report, the 26-inch green bike had not been locked. Value of the bicycle was not reported.

Cloudy skies covered most of Ohio early today with rain falling over north central and northeastern Ohio and showers in south central Lake Erie.

The low pressure responsible for the clouds and showers was moving eastward out of Ohio and was to be followed by partial clearing late this afternoon in all but the northeast and east central counties.

High pressure Thursday should bring a return of sunshine to the state.

Early morning lows were on the mild side, ranging from 43 in Akron-Canton to 46 in Cleveland. Highs today were expected to be in the upper 50s with lows tonight in the upper 30s.

FRIDAY THROUGH SATURDAY

Fair Friday. A chance of rain Saturday and Sunday. Highs in the 60s Friday and Saturday and in the upper 50s to mid 60s Sunday. Overnight lows in the 40s.

Silver Bridge reopens today

POINT PLEASANT, W.Va. (AP) -- To the applause of businessmen, the damaged four-lane bridge linking this community with Kanauga, Ohio, will reopen today.

The Silver Memorial Bridge has been closed since July 6 because of cracked welds discovered by inspectors in the span's main beams. Besides inconveniencing commuters, the closing cut into commerce.

The past 14 weeks have been anxious and depressing ones for this community, which endured the closing of this massive, barely 8-year old bridge with disbelief," said G.A. Biggs, president of the Point Pleasant-Mason County Chamber of Commerce.

A parttime Ohio River ferry service was operated by the state while the bridge was closed.

Gov. Jay Rockefeller will be on hand for the opening. The bridge initially will be operated with only two traffic lanes. Workmen will be repairing the other two lanes.

Scattered showers expected in state

By The Associated Press

Here is the agriculture weather advisory for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service:

Low pressure centered over the lower Great Lakes continues to allow scattered showers to move across Ohio. By this afternoon showers will have ended over all but the extreme eastern sections of the state. Behind this low pressure center, high pressure stretches across the country from the Ohio Valley to the California coast. This large area of high pressure centered over the eastern Rockies will drift eastward bringing Indian summer weather to the eastern two-thirds of the nation.

FIELD OPERATIONS -- Field delays are still expected in the east today. Rain totals over much of the state have been extremely light, and additional delays in western and southern sections of the state are unlikely. By Thursday, field activities should resume across the state.

CORN AND SOYBEANS -- Corn harvest activities will resume in all but eastern sections of the state.
